

A small shop, 63 planned gifts, $4.62 million closed.

PBS KVIE is a small shop that needed help connecting with potential and existing planned giving donors. Legacy Call reached a wider audience and closed the gifts.

The Challenge

As a small shop, connecting with potential and existing planned giving donors can be a daunting task. PBS KVIE partnered with Catapult to identify and cultivate new planned giving donors, strengthen relationships with existing donors, and secure planned gifts.

The Solution

Catapult built a customized, highly personalized planned giving outreach program designed to cast a wider net than a small development team could reach on its own: a database review and loyal donor prospect selection, a thank you and planned giving identification call, then a planned giving education call and gift commitment discussion with Catapult's planned giving consultants.

The Benefits

- Loyal donors get the time, attention, and gratitude they have earned
- Consultants uncover planned gifts the station never knew about, so they can be recognized
- Donors interested but not ready are identified for continued nurturing
- Every conversation adds qualified names to a pipeline the station can work for years

"Legacy Call service was a game-changer for us. We are a small shop. Thanks to Legacy Call, we were able to reach out to a wider audience of potential donors. The response was incredible. Not only did we secure several new planned gifts, but we also identified a pool of prospective donors."
